For lunch the Country Mouse served wheat stalks, roots, and acorns, with a dash of cold water for drink. The Town Mouse ate very sparingly, nibbling a little of this and a little of that, and by her manner making it very plain that she ate the simple food only to be polite.

the town mouse and the country mouse A Town Mouse once visited a relative who lived in the country. For lunch the Country Mouse served wheat stalks, roots, and acorns, with a dash of cold water for drink. The Town Mouse rather turned up his long nose at this country fare, and said: "I cannot understand, Cousin, how you can put up with such poor food as this, but of course you cannot expect anything better in the country; come you with me and I will show you how to live. The Town Mouse was fed basic food at leisure; the Country Mouse had to run away from fine food. He ran home. Better beans and bacon in peace than cakes and ale in fear.

The Town Mouse and the Country Mouse is one of Aesop's Fables. It is number in the Perry Index and type in AarneThompson's folk tale index. Like several other elements in Aesop's fables, 'town mouse and country mouse' has become an English idiom. The Town Mouse and the Country Mouse was exceptional! Such a great dramatic arts experience for the kids to learn about equality and bravery.

The Town Mouse and the Country Mouse Norway. Once upon a time a town mouse met a country mouse on the outskirts of a wood. The country mouse was sitting under a hazel thicket plucking nuts. "Busy harvesting, I see," said the town mouse. "Who would think of our meeting in this out-of-the-way part of the world?" "Just so," said the country mouse.
